Baggins the bear hasn't been feeling well and has to go to hospital to have an operation to make him better.

He has had a letter from the hospital letting him know when this will happen and what he needs to do before his operation. He has been a little bit worried about this and has some questions.

Let's follow Baggins on his journey to help him understand what will happen.

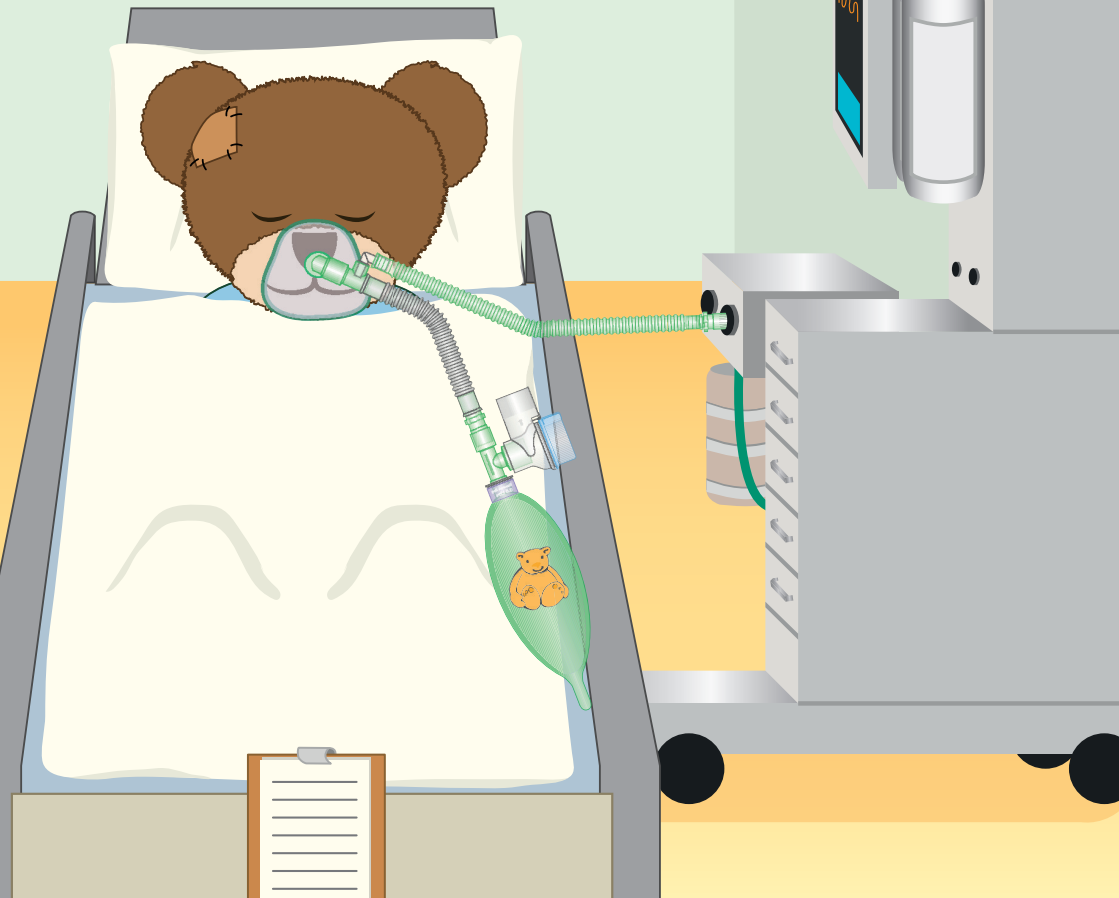

At the hospital Baggins will be met by some kind people who will look after him and tell him where he needs to go. He may see some other children who are having an operation to make them feel better too.

When it is Baggins' turn for his operation he is asked to wear a special gown and he has a ride on a trolley to the operating theatre.

When Baggins arrives in the room for his operation he see's a colourful poster with lot's of bears and he tries to count them. He may be asked to breathe into and wear a special mask and may see a bear on a balloon shaped bag. Within a few seconds he will feel sleepy.

When Baggins wakes up from his sleep his operation will be all over and he will be looked after by the kind doctors and nurses until he feels better.

Very soon Baggins will be going home.

Baggins has been feeling much better and is ready to go home. The doctors and nurses give him a special certificate for being such a brave bear!

Bye, bye from Baggins.
